

Mistakes We Make

Sometimes you have to dig deep to discover what you really need. Marketing events manager Molly Keir doesn't realise how much she still cares for her ex until she meets him with another woman. Her answer is to seize the chance of a glittering job in London - even though this will mean leaving behind her aging father and pregnant best friend Lexie Gordon. Adam Blair is in the wrong job. Pressured by his father to join the family law firm, the stress of work helped break his marriage. Now Molly is moving to London, and he knows he needs to move on - but events soon overtake his best intentions. A year ago, Caitlyn Murray quit her well-paid job to avoid becoming a whistleblower. Now she is stuck at home with her overworked mother and four needy step-siblings. Tempted by the offer of a good wage, she returns to her old firm - where her nightmare comes back to haunt her. Molly and Adam seem to have gone too far to recover the love they once had, and when Caitlyn finds the courage to speak out, she brings all their worlds tumbling down.

Five years ago, I wrote a post called My 52 Mistakes about the worst missteps I'd taken in my life, and what I learned from them. At that time, I bought Mistakes We Make (Heartlands 5) UK ed. by Jenny Harper (ISBN: 9781910939161) from Amazon's Book Store. Everyday low prices and free delivery on 65 quotes have been tagged as mistakes-we-make: Steve Goodier: Bring it up, make amends, forgive yourself. It sounds simple, but don't think for a second
